ANNOUNCEMENT II

The Conference regarding the URBAN COMPOSITION OF A RESILIENT CITY has been scheduled for 25–26 March 2021 as an online event. We invite everyone interested in issues concerning the contemporary city for active participation in the Conference.

CONFERENCE THESIS:

- The role of urban composition in city planning across history;
- Legibility of urban layouts as a vehicle for the timeless order of city structures;
- Urban composition versus urban morphology;
- Contemporary perspective on rebuilding cities damaged by war and natural disasters;
- The role of composed urban interior sequences in countering natural and man-made disasters;
- Sustainable development of cities and metropolises—is urban composition still needed?
- Urban resilience and its links with continuity and complementarity of public spaces;
- Accessible cities—resilient cities?
- Resilient polycentric metropolises;
- Smart cities and metropolises—are they resilient?
- Integrated urban planning;
- Shaping urban composition—legal instruments and municipal policies;
- Urban design and planning education.
